Dear Community,

So, Hermes filed a trademark lawsuit against me on Friday—although they didn't send me or my lawyers a copy. My lawyers and I have reviewed Hermes' complaint. Hermes' claims are groundless and we look forward to defeating those claims in court and helping to set a precedent.

I am not creating or selling fake Birkin bags. I've made art works that depict imaginary, fur-covered Birkin bags.

My lawyers at Lex Lumina PLLC put it well when they said that the First Amendment gives me the right to make and sell art that depicts Birkin bags, just as it gave Andy Warhol the right to make and sell art depicting Campbell's soup cans.

I have the right also to use the term "MetaBirkins" to describe truthfully what that art depicts, and to comment artistically on those bags and on the Birkin brand.

The fact that I sell the art using NFTs doesn't change the fact that it's art. It's quite clear from reading Hermes' complaint that they don't understand what an NFT is, or what NFTs do.

We have tried to be reasonable. Hermes first sent me a letter threatening a lawsuit if I didn't knuckle under and stop doing MetaBirkins altogether. We wrote to them and explained that we were doing nothing we didn't have a right to do. We told them that we believed that the dispute could be resolved through an informal conversation between me and an Hermes representative. Hermes chose instead to break off negotiations and sue me.

I hope Hermes understands that I won't be intimidated.

 riff_randell_ Guys, don't you know a stunt when you see it?

In order to maintain a copyright you HAVE to defend it, otherwise you literally lose your brand. Hermes is just doing their job, Metabirkins knew they would and set this up to look like some kind of hero taking on the establishment

This is such a hack trick for publicity and it makes me bored.

Hermes should do a line of physical bags that look exactly like yours called Meta metabirkins. It's exactly the same thing. I'd buy that, and it would actually hold its value.

 estermaicha The fact that they are trying to fight you just shows how mentally outdated this company is. When @gucci embraced @dapperdanharlem it was a smart, strategic move that brought dividends to all parties. These lawsuits are meh. Stale jpegsneversleep The issue here is why Opensea doesn't stand with you, Hermes is prehistoric, Opensea is the world largest NFT marketplace and their position in this case is quite frankly ridiculous because they are setting a precedent on not protecting the community that is making them rich to the billions

-  alexheyre I understand your principle and taking a stance against these huge companies that abuse their power is great, but at the end of the day your art has an intense lack of originality due to its premise. I wish you luck though against birkin though I think their power should intimidate you a little more than you say it is

-  thefactive_ @alexheyre it is original, he should have reached out to them first. Nfts are great but I think people are ahead of themselves. It's almost like making NFTs of Mickey Mouse... Try it. Really I think we all sort of need to slow down a bit untill we get it sorted out.

-  oliviermermet @alexheyre what are you talking about? Power? It's a luxury brand. Not a military contractor. The only thing they have is their image. It comes from century of craftsmanship. This guy is getting a free ride and prints images in bulk in photoshop. They're protecting their brand. This has 0 congruence with what Hermès does. It's literal theft.

-  alexheyre @oliviermermet I mean power in terms of finances and connections. Power enough to drown this guy. Weird that your interpretation of power is correlated with military might

-  oliviermermet @alexheyre resources might have been a better term tgen, but it surely conveys less of the bullying narrative you guys are trying to nurture. Anyway, someone who steals a name, a design, while giving 0 royalties to the original owner should not be surprised. No bullying, just normal brand protection.

-  alexheyre @oliviermermet It's a perfectly apt term thank you, whoever you are  "You guys are trying to nurture"?? Me and what guys trying to nurture what  you seem to have your own agenda and issues with something though I'm not sure what. Either way thank you for your facile and redundant insight

-  hayy_tae I understand both sides. But I the issue is more so the name then the actual art. They do have the right to the name birkin because it's trademarked. I don't think the courts understand the nft world yet and you might loose because of it. So you may just have to change the name

-  shawnmengot You are clearly stealing from @hermes That's a fact even stevie wonder can see. Birkin is @hermes . Ain't no other birkin we kno' out there. You might have an argument with your @metabirkins but to deny profiting off the brand is foolery. #metaverse in full effect. I'll be watchin' this. #liveandlearn

-  livkris @shawnmengot did u read the statement? Was it stealing when Andy Warhol painted Coca Cola? Lmao it's completely within the law, and it's commentary on an iconic fashion/culture/socioeconomic item that communicates status.

-  shawnmengot @livkris Mrs know it all, you clearly did not understand my statement and u are always trying to put up a fight with people trying to draw u to reason. I clearly mentioned, he may have an argument, but we know the truth. Moreover, let it be known that Warhol was a known thief accused of plagiarising the work of Patricia Caulfield and many others...

-  christymaguire @shawnmengot No he was smart to create the NFT. It's an innocent thing as NFTs are very Nee. At the time he created these Adidas hadn't done or announced a drop yet. How can anyone predict what fully is to transpire within Metaverse. He jumped on an idea and a smart one. Maybe they'll hire him to help with their own Launch or turn it into a MetaBirkin X Hermes collection I doubt they'll be nice or progressive like that. But Virgil Ablo and Alec Monopoly did it for Louis Vuitton Takashi Murakami and LV did it before anyone. Disney/Mickey Mousr and Gucci, Hello Kitty and Chanel. Let's see what happens.
27w
-  oliviermermet @livkris Warhol was not setting prices, he was not printing 100's of images in a day, and his intention was not to make a quick buck. That's an insane comparison.
